	After submitting the online application in the student application portal, students receive an email with their UBC student ID number. They must also forward their supporting application documents (see “Application Documents” above) to their home university for submission through the partner nomination portal by the application document deadlines. Then, they should follow the remaining steps as indicated on the respective application instructions pages by campus to apply for on-campus student housing if needed (prior to admission) and create a Campus-Wide Login (CWL) account (after admission).
Admission & Course Registration
Admission Process	Application files are reviewed by Go Global and/or faculties for admission. Once admitted, students will receive an email notification prompting them to download a Letter of Acceptance (LOA) from the student application portal. LOAs will be available late May for Round 1 and late October for Round 2 students. As an administrative step, students will also need to accept their admission offer in the Applicant Service Centre (ASC) by the stated deadline on their admission notification email. The steps for students to accept the offer are: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Go to the ASC to obtain a login link 2. Select “Student, Applicant, External Student Portal” 3. Enter your UBC student number and the email used to create your Go Global application 4. You will get an email with a link* that logs you into UBC Applicant Service Centre (ASC) with no password required 5. Accept your admission offer in ASC before the deadline indicated *NOTE: The link in step 4 expires after 15 minutes. To receive a new link, repeat steps 1- 3. Check your junk mail in case the email gets accidentally sorted there. If you do not receive an email, please submit a ticket to the UBC IT Help Desk for technical support. After accepting the offer in the ASC, the student can proceed with creating a CWL account to access UBC’s online systems, including Workday Student (UBC’s new student information system). Provincial Attestation Letters (PALs) for full-year and split-year students only: This document is used for initial study permit applications from outside Canada. Within two (2) weeks of students accepting their admission offer in the Applicant Service Centre, the PAL will be emailed directly to students. More information about the PAL and other documents required for study permit applications can be found here. NOTE: Because of the limited number of PALs available, students will only receive one (1) PAL. Students MUST ensure all information is correct prior to accepting their admission offer as we are unable to re-issue PALs. Students must notify Go Global within five (5) business days of the notification about their admission if they do not require a PAL or if their personal information needs to be updated. More information about admissions can be found under the section on Admission & Acceptance Procedures here: https://goglobal.ubc.ca/go-global/coming-ubc/coming-ubc-exchange/step-2-application-process
